

SHOW HOME SPOILT OUT

INNOVATION STATION

Designer Chip Wade from HGTV's Make It Happen and architect Bob Hirsch of BH Design Studio have created a showstopper of a show home, available for viewing (only) in your own living room. Dubbed the Innovation Show Home (www.innovationhome.com), it includes a virtual reality tour with a select array of featured vendors and brands like CR. Studio, Marvin Windows and Doors, Forstner, and more. With one click, users can guide themselves around a contemporary masterpiece and click or scroll around to find out more. For example, if you're interested in the horizontal tile laid between the tiled doors and the water feature they sit, all of a sudden, all anything they could dream they could see, an information-rich pop-up studio and location directly to purchase for a seamless experience. Take a virtual guided tour the home—be sure to play with the light feature, and check out the handy tip bar—designmag.com 37

2015-2016 DESIGN

PAPER CHASE

For Ross Higgins, founder of H Higgins, the decision to work for a Atlanta and Winston-Salem-based Elites Women was an easy one. "We felt like there was nothing else out there like this in the market," says Higgins.

"The use of materials and finishes are just so unique and special to Elites Women." Adding to the pull was the brand's dedication to giving back through providing to women worldwide with the ability to work from home or on only one for their children, but to also help them gain financial independence, giving new meaning to the phrase "to show a village." Higgins is especially impressed with the Elites Women for the model he built—a meeting and paper master. Besides that, he is impressed with additional tools by the firm. ADDC, the ADDC + Higgins www.addc.com 46
